LICHENS OF LAIDE WOOD

28th March 2020 at 10:30am

Join local Ranger Katie as she introduces you to the wonderful world of Lichens - two organisms which live together in harmony on the trees here at Laide wood.

Found in abundance all year round, living on trees, rocks or along the coast, learn about what makes lichens special, how to begin to identify them and why they are important in woodlands habitats. The West Coast of Scotland has some spectacular and internationally important lichen species.

Meet in the carpark ready for a 10:30am start.
Dress for the weather.

Come and learn about what those grey leafy things you find on the trees really are.
Everyone welcome!
